

WELCOME TO THE FOUNDING COHORT

You're in. Takeoff is the week of July 6.

Your family is part of the very first Code the Future cohort — kids who will grow up understanding AI instead of just using it. Here's what's coming over the next few weeks, and what the summer will look like.

THE COUNTDOWN TO TAKEOFF

1 Today — explore together
Visit codethefuture.net and watch the short founder film with your kid.

2 Next two weeks — keys arrive
Your login and cohort number come by text from Jon. Nothing to do until then.

3 Week of July 6 — takeoff
Kids build their character, join their cohort, and Mission 1 opens — library schedule included.

WHAT THE SUMMER LOOKS LIKE

One hour at the library, weekly
Small-group, hands-on sessions with mentors in the room. Your session day and time arrive before the first week.

Missions at home, paced
Twelve missions on the platform, unlocking in three waves across the week — designed so kids come back, not binge.

Badges, gear, and a Big Mission
Every mission earns badge art and character gear. The finale: building with a real AI, the same kind professionals use.

FOR PARENTS — HOW WE KEEP IT SAFE

- No personal data from kids. They join with a code — no email, no real names required.
- Filtered, supervised chat. Every message passes a language filter and is visible to staff, including private ones.
- A psychologist on the team. A specialist in child development helped design the platform and reviews every module.
- Progress you can ask about. Staff dashboards track every camper and flag anyone who's stuck — just ask us anytime.

BEFORE THE FIRST SESSION

- ✓ Explore codethefuture.net together and watch the film
- ✓ Watch for Jon's text with your login + cohort number
- ✓ A laptop or Chromebook with a browser — that's all the tech they need
- ✓ Headphones help for the read-aloud and study music
